

I remember reading that Marlon Brando had his kitchen cupboards padlocked.

When they were open, he ate anything within reach—handfuls of flour.

I think of the moment after sex when you separate back into your own skin

the loneliness

of hungers

that can be filled

temporarily